

I am concerned that implimentation of BPL appears to be moving forward in the USA despite its negative impact discovered by other countries researching this technology. I agree that access to the Internet should be available to everyone (especially in rural areas). If satellite Internet could be made competitive and therefore more cost effective we wouldn't need BPL, a technology that seems to be VERY controversial with regard to inteference. I'm just concerned because some studies say there will not be inteference and some that seem to say it is a 'Pandoras box'.